CENTRE COUNTIANS ENJOY PARTY IN CITY OF CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Dr. Alfred Beirly is Birthday Guest and Former Residents of Penns and Brush Valleys Extend Felicitations and Make Merry.

A birthday party, occuring in the city of Chicago, in which the host and hostess, the birthday guest, and all other participants were former Centre countians, was an unusual but altogether happy and joyous occasion. The event transpired at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hazell, 7349 Perry Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, on July 22nd, being the occasion of the birthday anniversary of Dr. Alfred Beirly, of Chicago, Illinois. Through the kindness of two of his former school mates—the Hazells—the birthday guest was invited to their home to feast and talk over events of earlier years.

Hardly had the birthday guests arrived at the home of the host and hostess, when news came by telephone that no less than five other well known Centre county persons were on their way to the Hazell home to pay their respects, which was most cheering news indeed. The assemblage when completed consisted entirely of former Centre countians, and were as follows:

John Hazell, the host, formerly of Madisonburg, now employed by the Chicago school board in the capacity of an efficient aid;

Mrs. Margaret Smith-Hazell, the hostess, daughter of the late Joseph Smith of Penn Hall;

Mrs. Jacob S. Meyer, of Spring Mills;

Mrs. S. H. Long, sister of Mrs. J. S. Meyer, now residing at 178 Locust St., Newark, Ohio;

Roy Kreider, formerly of Rebersburg, now a resident of Cicero, Illinois, a near-by suburb of Chicago, who is a member of the great Western Electric Company;

Mrs. Katherine Meyer-Krieder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Meyer, who is the wife of Roy Kreider;

Miss Gladys Meyer, the charming and accomplished young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Meyer, who is now so ably filling the position of instructor at the "Home for Boys," in Jamesburg, N. J., and

The birthday guest, Dr. Alfred Beirly, who is a native of Madisonburg, Centre county.

Three of the ladies named, Mrs. J. S. Meyer, Mrs. Long and Miss Gladys Meyer, have recently paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Kreider of Cicero, Illinois, and, incidentally also made brief visits to their many Pennsylvania friends residing in Chicago, likewise taking in the many wonderful sights to be seen in the second city of the western hemisphere.

That meeting of Pennsylvanians, though not prearranged, nevertheless proved to be a most enjoyable affair, one of great interest and long to be remembered.

Altogether it was a gathering, the like of which seldom happens in a life time. The participants were keyed to the highest pitch of felicity and experienced a thoroughly enjoyable time.

HANDICAPPING A COLLEGE.

From Harrisburg Patriot.

President Sparks' speech at the State College picnic held with such pronounced success at Hershey recently, ought to have been heard by all present and prospective members of the legislature which sits next January.

Dr. Sparks after recounting the great growth of the institution asserted that probably 600 prospective students in the fall would have to be denied admittance to the college because of lack of appropriations. This condition is not only a reflection on Pennsylvania but an evidence of short-sightedness that has prevailed much too long.

In a literal sense, Penn State is the only state institution the commonwealth possesses. It has been doing its work on a shoestring. While the great states of the west and even the south are backing their state institutions, Pennsylvania pauses at the gateway of a great opportunity. Its own state college has lost professors and stood helpless before its possibilities while state appropriations were squandered or voted to institutions not so worthy as State.

The time is here when citizens should demand of legislative candidates their attitude toward Penn State.

Centre Countians Die in Illinois.

The Freeport (Ill.) Bulletin last week contained the obituary notices of two former Centre county residents. They were: Mrs. James Rezner, who went west with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Yarger, when she was thirteen years of age. At the time of her death she was sixty-four years old.

William Vore, aged eighty-two years, who went to Illinois with his parents when he was quite young.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS; SETS AUGUST 28TH AS OPENING DAY.

Lengthens Compulsory School Period.—Orders Repairs in School Room.—Elects New Janitor.

The boro school board met Monday morning with Messrs. Dauberman, Bitner and Strohmeier present. The time for holding the regular monthly meeting was recently changed from the first Friday night in the month to the first Monday morning, for the convenience of Messrs. Ripka and Geary, who, however, failed to be present at the August meeting.

Miss Grace Smith handed in her enumeration of the children of school age in the borough. The figures showed a total of 111 children between the ages of six and sixteen years. This is an increase of fifteen over last year.

The grass on the school plot was sold to John G. Dauberman for $5.00.

A new floor in the grammar grade was ordered laid this week.

The day for opening school was set for August 28th. There will be two weeks of school and this will be followed by a week's vacation over the period of the Encampment and Fair.

Samuel Shoop was elected janitor for the coming term at a salary of $10.00 per month.

The period of compulsory school attendance was increased to six months, being slightly in excess of the seventy per cent. attendance which is the minimum required by the school code. The time for beginning the compulsory period was fixed by the board at October 2.

August Council Meeting.

The August council meeting was held Friday night, the members present being Daup, Bradford, Weber, Goodhart and Smith. The routine business was gone over and a few bills passed.

Overseer Spangler had notified individual councilmen that he could not run his department on the funds accruing from a tax levy of two mills, so the council promptly obliged him by tacking an additonal mill to the tax rate.

The greater part of the session was given over to a discussion of a traffic ordinance, and finally a measure similar to that in operation in Bellefonte was adopted. The ordinance is advertised in this issue of the Reporter and should be read by automobile owners and drivers.

It was also agreed to enforce the speed limit set by the state for the boroughs, which is fifteen miles. Of course, the proper notices will be posted at the five approaches to the borough before the time watch is held by an officer.

The parking of automobiles occasioned a great deal of talk. The ordinance provides that this feature be placed in the hands of the burgess, who by proclamation is to manage the difficult problem.

When Is An Auto "In Operation?"

A case in the next term of court which will attract attention is one that will be brought up from State College in which the court will be asked to define when an automobile is "in operation." When a number of auto owners were fined recently for failing to have the tail lights on their cars lighted while parked along the curb in State College, C. L. Goodling, who was one of the parties fined, decided to test the legality of the case and appealed the decision handed down by Justice Bullock to court.

'Squire Bullock holds that a car is in operation from the time it is taken out of the garage for use until it is returned to it, or is in some other garage. The Attorney General says the car is not in operation when parked or standing along the curb. A letter from the Attorney General to this effect was read at the Goodling hearing.

New York Publishers Cut Size of Paper.

Publishers of daily newspapers in greater New York at a meeting last week, took action which will result in a decrease of the number of pages in their morning, evening and Sunday issues of 121 pages a week. The reduction of so many pages is a step to relieve the news print paper situation, which is regarded by the publishers as very serious. Action was also taken to eliminate return of unsold copies.

Sunday Was a Scorcher.

Mercury stood at 93 degrees on Sunday and with the aid of old "General Humidity" the heat forced the average person to remain very quiet and seek the coolest spot to be found. It was probably the most sultry day of the summer season.

Grangers' Picnic at Osterburg.

The thirty-first annual Grangers' picnic will be held in Oster's Grove at Osterburg, Bedford county, from Tuesday until Friday, August 15 to 18.

Took in 31 Loads Wheat in One Day.

The Van Tries farm, near Linden Hall, on which Arber J. Cummings is tenant, was the scene of great activity on Monday, on which day thirty-one huge loads of wheat were stored away in the barn. Kind neighbors on all sides volunteered help to Mr. Cummings who only a few weeks ago was bereft by the death of a son who was the only help on the farm. The thirty-one loads were taken off forty acres and it was practically a cleanup of the harvest. The day's work exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine when the four teams were started on the hauling early in the morning. Besides neighbors Messrs. Bohn, McClintic and Ralston, William Cummings and Charles Frazier, of near Aaronsburg, and Henry Stoner, of State College, father-in-law to Arber Cummings, assisted in the work.

Mr. Cummings feels deeply the kindly spirit shown by these true friends, and by means of the printed word wishes to express heartfelt thanks for their good work.

Meat Market Property Sold.

In last week's issue mention was made of the fact that Landlord J. W. Runkle had made the local three-link order an offer of $1500 for the meat market property, adjoining the hotel on the south. At the regular meeting of the order on Saturday night bids for the purchase of the property were opened and as Mr. Runkle's bid was the highest the property was sold to him. Consideration, $1610. W. F. Colyer was a close second with a bid of $1600.

The property was purchased a number of years ago by the Odd Fellows from Mrs. Susanna Spangler for $1200.

Surprise Party on 72nd Birthday.

The seventy-second birthday anniversary of Mrs. Maria Jordan, of Colyer, was fittingly celebrated on Saturday evening by the coming together of the children of Mrs. Jordan, their families, and near relatives. The party was a complete surprise to Mrs. Jordan and it was some time until she regained her composure after having been worked up to a high state of happy feeling. The visitors brought ice cream, cake, watermelons, fruit and candy, and until a late hour enjoyed themselves as one great family. Many presents were given "Mother" Jordan and the close of the day proved to be one of the happiest in her long life. All departed expressing the hope that it may not be the last of such happy occasions.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Jordon and son Luke, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Jordan and sons Boyd and Andrew, William Jordan, Greely Jordan, Mrs. Samuel Housman, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Weaver and daughter Wilda, Mr. and Mrs. John Weaver son William, Mr. and Mrs. John Bubb, son George and daughter Martha, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lingle, Frank Rickert, all of Colyer; Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Jordan and children Emily and Floyd, Mrs. Charles Stoner and four children, James Spangler, of Tusseyville; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jordan and son Roy, of McConnell, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. William Haney and son Harry, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Rickert, three daughters, Esther, Mary and Hazel, and son Russell, and Harvey Brian, of Spring Mills.

New Firm Sells Eight Cars.

During the past week Boozer and Smith sold eight new automobiles to the following parties: A. P. Krape, James L. Decker, each a five-passenger Dodge; Victor A. Auman, A. E. Kerlin, George W. Bradford, J. W. Dashem, R. M. Smith, J. C. Vonada, each a Ford touring car.

Quail and Pheasants to be Plentiful.

Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, Secretary of the State Game Commission, after returning home from a visit to probably a dozen counties, says that there will be an abundance of quail for Pennsylvania sportsmen this fall.

"Weather conditions have been favorable for the birds to batch and to grow," said the Commision Secretary, and almost without exception the counties report many birds. The southern tier of counties will afford splendid sport this year."

Dr. Kalbfus said that the plan of importing quail had proved successful and that regions where the quail were liberated have been found echoing with the cries of the birds. If the weather conditions continue good there will be plenty of quail by the time the season opens.

The outlook for grouse is also reported as excellent, the birds being numerous in many sections. In the woods the weather has kept down the ticks and other bugs which destroy game and as a result the grouse have been reported plentiful from many sections.

To-day (Thursday) the Penns Valley Lutheran charge will hold its annual reunion on Grange Park.

SUNBURY HOME TO HOLD BIG CELEBRATION.

Labor Day Selected as Time for Celebrating 20th Anniversary of Founding of Home.

The Three-Link Orphans' Home at Sunbury is going to celebrate its twentieth birthday by holding a big celebration on its grounds Monday, September 4, (Labor Day.)

The Sunbury Home, which is the largest, finest, and best equipped orphans' home in the State, was founded twenty years ago by a band of earnest, devoted Odd Fellows who felt it their duty to establish some place for the children of deceased Odd Fellows.

The Home, which started in the big, white building, now known as "The Annex" or kid's nursery, had a remarkable success. From the first things looked promising, and now the Home boasts a fine new school-building, a beautiful and commodious main building, an up-to-date heating plant, and "The Annex."

The celebration will be opened by Hon. J. W. Strob, president of the home. The program of the day includes concerts by the famous band of the home and the girls' orchestra, addresses by prominent Odd Fellows and others, a base ball game, and other interesting features, which conspire to make the day a most interesting one, and enjoyable.

All Odd Fellows, and friends of the Order, are most cordially invited to be at the home for this big day. There are many sights worth while seeing, and the trip is worth the price of the ticket—and then some.

Don't bring a lunch box. Eats and drinks of the temperance variety, and the good old home quality, will be served on the ground at reasonable prices.

LOCALS

Miss Elizabeth Sweetwood spent several days the past week with her friend, Miss Grace Horner, at Tusseyville.

The wiring for the boro electric street lights was completed last week and the lights are now on in all parts of the town.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude K. Stahl, of Altoona, will arrive to-day (Thursday) at the home of the former's parents for the annual vacation.

W. A. Odenkirk has an ad. in this issue calling attention to reductions on summer wear. Read it and profit by visiting this well-stocked store.

According to the recent enumeration of children of school age in the borough there is an increase of fifteen over the count of a year ago, the figures being 111 to 96.

The Pennsy will run two more Atlantic City Sunday excursions from this section this month. The first one leaves Saturday night of this week. The second is scheduled for August 27.

Miss Lena Emerick, night operator in the local Bell exchange, is spending her vacation in Altoona with her brother, Domer Emerick, and family. Miss Emerick was accompanied on her trip by her younger sister, Miss Carrie Belle.

W. W. White, of Linden Hall, accompanied by his uncle, C. Felding, and the latter's grandaughter, Victoria Wehlan, of Pittsburgh, were brief callers at this office last Thursday. Mr. Felding is spending a few weeks with relatives in Linden Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Musser and daughter, Alice Belle, of Altoona, spent a day last week at the home of the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Dinges, in this place. Mr. Musser is employed in the boiler plant of the Pennsy in Altoona.

John B. Zeigler, a brother of Daniel Zeigler of Millheim, and a former resident of Union county, was taken to the national military home at Dayton, Ohio, a week or more ago. He was a member of Co. D, 148th regiment, in the Civil war, and served under General James A. Beaver. For some years past he had lived in Tyrone and a few weeks ago suffered a light paralytic stroke.

Four weeks from Saturday the forty-third annual Encampment and Fair will open on Grange Park. The annual fair promises to be fully up to the standard of former years, if not better. Hon. L. Rhone, chairman of the Encampment and Fair Association, is receiving an unprecedented request for tents and every effort will be made to supply all applicants, for it is this feature of the big week that is most enjoyed by the farmers and others. A number of tents have been in use by the Boalsburg mounted machine gun troop but these will be returned in plenty of time for use at the Grange Encampment. Practically all the tents will be lighted with electricity, as well as the grounds generally, thus doing away with the old three-burner torches which served as the only lighting system for many years.

Recruiting Station Opened.

In accordance with recent orders from the Commanding General of the Eastern Department, U. S. A., Lieut. R. A. Zentmyer, has been appointed a recruiting officer for the National Guard of the United States and Pennsylvania, with station at Tyrone, but including also the surrounding territory and including Clearfield, Philipsburg, Bellefonte and Lock Haven. Permission has been requested to visit these places for recruiting purposes, but until such permission has been granted, recruits will be accepted and enlisted at Tyrone for all arms of the service, including infantry, artillery, cavalry, engineers and ambulance company. Each recruit will be privileged to choose the organization in which he desires to inlist, that is the regiment, but will be assigned to the particular company by the officer in command of the regiment. While there are vacancies in the different companies it is presumed that under ordinary circumstances a man will have little difficulty in being assigned to the company from his own town or locality, where he is acquainted. While the bulk of the recruits are for the infantry organizations to bring them to our war strength of 1800 enlisted men to the regiment, yet there are some vacancies in all the other arms of the service. The enlistments will be the same as in the National Guard service, viz., three years active service and three years in the reserve, unless sooner discharged.

Patriotic young men are urged to respond to this call of their State and Country, and to show their appreciation of the service of those already at the front. Recruits as soon as examined and enlisted will be sent to Mt. Gretna for intensive instruction and from there will be forwarded to the organizations of their choice as soon as they are properly equipped, drilled and outfitted.

Bridge Near State College Closed.

The bridge between Lemont and State College was closed last Wednesday, following an order from the district attorney. An effort has been made time and time again to have the bridge repaired, but the county refused to do it, stating that it was the state's property, while the state came back by arguing that it was the county's bridge to keep in repair. The question is, who owns it?

It appears that where the state has taken over roads from the county upon which there are bridges that have been kept up in the past by the county the higher courts have decided that the state did not take over the bridges and they must be kept up by the county. But this road had been a turnpike taken over by the county and then by the state. The county had never built any bridges on it or done any work on the bridges. This situation, it seems, has never been before the higher courts for a decision as to the bridge ownership. The lower court decided that the state owned the bridges.

Juniors Humble Potters Mills.

The Potters Mills baseball team received a bad defeat at the hands of the local junior nine on Grange Park Saturday afternoon. The score was 13 to 1, the game terminating at the end of the 5th inning on account of rain. The batteries were, Centre Hall, Auman and Sweetwood; Potters Mills, Smith and Auman. Smith was handicapped at the receiving end of the battery and no less than a half dozen runs were due to passed balls and inability to stem base stealing. Auman, for the locals, pitched an excellent game and was well supported. Bruce Stahl was the keystone of the defense and killed several hits by "grandstand" plays. His hitting also was responsible for many runs, no less than three safe swats emanating from his trusty willow.

The formal opening and dedication of the United Evangelical home, just north of Lewisburg, was held on Friday. The exercises were under the direction of Dr. A. E. Gobble, D. D., of Albright College, Myerstown.

The inspection of the home was made after the dinner hour. The dedication of the home followed in which Bishop U. F. Swengle, D. D., presided.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

H. B. Frankenberger, of near Centre Hall, purchased a Ford touring car this week.

Mrs. Emma Breon and daughter, Miss Bessie, of State College, spent Sunday with relatives in this place.

Mrs. John G. Dauberman was among the most recent residents of Centre Hall to have her house wired for electric lights.

Messrs. Robert I. Smith, Wilbur Bland and John Horner, Jr., a portion of the track force on the local branch railroad, on Monday were called to Sunbury.

A few farmers are cutting oats this week, but the majority of them are of the opinion that another week is needed for ripening. The crop will be a heavy one.

Mrs. William Hockenbury, of West Brownsville, Washington county, was the guest of Mrs. Harry Harper from Thursday until Saturday. Mrs. Hockenbury was formerly Miss Carrie Spicher.

John D. Lucas and force of carpenters have completed remodeling the home of ex-Treasurer John D. Miller, at Hublersburg, and are now engaged at Pleasant Gap in the erection of several dwelling houses.

County commissioners D. A. Grove, W. H. Noll and Isaac Miller, together with commissioner's clerk Harry N. Meyer, are attending the annual state convention of county commissioners in session at Meadville this week.

John Rimmey, a young Potter township farmer who went to Minnesota in the spring, returned to his home in Tusseyville on Saturday. The young man became affected by the torrid heat and upon the advice of a physician returned home to regain his former health and strength.

Ralph McFarland, aged nineteen years, of Tyrone, was perhaps fatally injured on Friday night when he crashed into a loaded wagon with his motorcycle near Lewistown. The lights of an approaching auto blinded him. He was found by a passerby in an unconcious condition, having had his skull fractured besides receiving other injuries. He is lying in the Lewistown hospital with his life hanging by a thread.

Penns Valley was represented at the Methodist reunion at Lakemont Park, Altoona, last Thursday, by Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bartholomew and daughters, and Miss Helen Bartholomew, from this place, who made the trip in their big Mitchell car, and Rev. W. H. Williams, of Spring Mills. On the return trip the Bartholomew group was increased by the addition of little Mary Helen Bartholomew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. L. Bartholomew.

The borough fathers devoted much of their talk on Friday evening to the parking of automobiles. It looks to the Reporter that this feature of the automobile traffic should be let take care of itself. It can see no wisdom in the employment of a traffic officer, especially when there is nothing to do but to order an automobile from the front of one private residence to that of another, and it is willing to credit Burgess Arney with having the good sense not to create a sinking place for taxes and create ill feeling among those whom every business man and citizen ought to be out on the street to welcome when they come to town.

The Reporter's sanctum, on Thursday of last week, was graced by Messrs. J. Edgar Probyn, of Altoona; D. G. Meek, of Juniata; J. Milo Campbell, of Ps. Furnace, and R. P. Campbell, of Penns Cave. The former two were stopping at the club house at Pennsylvania Furnace and induced Mr. Campbell to bring them down through Penns Valley to view the beautiful country. While in town Mr. Meek paid a brief visit to his half sister, Mrs. H. E. Homan, and Mr. Probyn paid his respects to D. J. Meyer. The Penns Valley Banking company's cashier, Mr. Keller, was also visited. Mr. Probyn holds the responsible positon of circulation manager of the Altoona Tribune, which, by the way, requires great ability although his paper is the superior of its competitors. Mr. Meek, as cashier of the Juniata National Bank, has a record for making good dividends and increasing the popularity of the institution. While these gentlemen cater to the public, their friend Campbell reaps the golden harvest from the "Glades" country and is content to live in what he terms the prettiest farming section in Central Pennsylvania. Our Mr. Campbell, proprietor of Penns Cave, holds the keys to the greatest of Nature's beauties, and knows how to make people feel that one visit to the great cavern is not sufficient. Who would not be pleased to have even a brief visit from such a quartet?

One New England statistical office, the proprietor believing in fresh air, has offices that are practically out of doors, making it necessary in winter for the typists to wear gloves, and as these cause frequent errors through striking two keys instead of one, small curved sticks have been put in use with which, instead of the fingers, the keys were struck safely, one at a time.

The death rate from wounds in the war is less than one-half as great as it was a year ago. Then 45 out of every 1,000 wounded died, while now less than 20 succumb.

Theresa Sebastian, aged twenty-one years, of South Bethlehem, was killed when she stepped out of the way of a southbound passenger train on the Reading Railway, directly in front of a drill train. The young woman and her sister, Veronica, started to cross the tracks. Veronica was successful, but Theresa hesitated and was drawn underneath the wheels. So close was her sister to her when she met death that her clothing was covered with blood. The vicinity has been the scene of half a dozen fatal accidents in as many months.

The convention of Lehigh District No. 2, Patriotic Order Sons of America, adopted resolutions to let down the bars in order, not to increase membership, but to allow the teachings of "America first" to a greater number. Up to this time the order admitted only native Americans. Ammon H. Bachman, for twenty-four years secretary, was elected president of the district.

Miss Sarah A. Stuber, of South Bethlehem, employed at a hotel, suffering from the heat and melancholy, took her life by swallowing carbolic acid. She was thirty-five years old. In a letter she left Miss Stuber asked that the funeral sermon be preached on the text, "Weep not for me."

Running out to save her pet dog from a passing automobile, Mrs. Mary Warner, widow, aged sixty-five years, of Collinsville, was struck by the machine and is in York Hospital, seriously injured. The automobile was driven by George H. Wake, residing near Airville.

Paul Polack, aged fourteen years, of Moore Township, was placed in jail for having, with three other boys, stolen a horse, a set of harness and a wagon from three farmers in Moore Township. They were traced to Allentown, and found with the team. Polack's companions escaped.

When the automobile of Samuel P. Smith, Jr., a Shadegap farmer, was thrown over a step embankment near Reedsville, his two-year-old daughter was killed and his wife was injured fatally.

Daniel O'Brien, twenty-six years old, of Lost Creek, while crossing the Lehigh Valley tracks in front of his home, was run over by an excursion train and killed.

WISCONSIN MAN SUCCEEDS SURFACE

Prof. Saunders is an Authority on Tree Pests.

CARRIES SALARY OF $4,000

J. G. Saunders Selected By Commission for Zoologist—Governor Holds Aloof.

Harrisburg.—Governor Brumbaugh has declined to be drawn into the controversy between State Zoologist H. A. Surface and the State Commissioners of Agriculture and he will not interfere with the commission's decision to terminate the connection of the zoologist with the Department on August 15.

Secretary Patton informed the Governor of the selection of Prof. J. G. Saunders, State entomologist of Wisconsin, for the place, and the Governor gave his consent, thereby ending the Surface incident, which has kept the Capitol stirred up for over a month. Numerous influential men tried to save him, but the Governor has definitely refused to change matters.

The post of zoologist carries a salary of $4,000, and it is believed that Prof. Saunders, who was here last week, will accept the office. He is stated by Secretary Patton to be an authority on San Jose scale and other tree pests.

Governor Brumbaugh consulted with a number of State officials regarding departmental affairs, coming appointments and other details, spending considerable time over National Guard affairs with Adjutant General Stewart. The Governor will be called upon to name officers for the two artillery regiments and to approve various matters which have been done.

Asks How Soldiers Can Vote.

Governor Brumbaugh asked Attorney General Brown for legal advice as to how the troops in Federal service can vote at the November election, inquiring about the Act of August 25, 1864, and what steps will be necessary for the State to take. The Governor also asked if commissioners are required and if so what should be their compensation. In regard to the registration laws the Governor wrote:

I beg to suggest that our registration and other laws relating to the elections passed since this Act (that of 1864) should be examined into to determine precisely all the necessary steps to be taken in order that there may be no question about the official counting of these votes.

Justices Of Peace Are Announced.

The following appointments of Justices of the Peace were announced at the State Capitol: G. W. Heilman, Bryn Athyn and Patrick Gormley, East Norriton Township, Montgomery; E. P. Hall, Muncy, Lycoming; Henry Babich, Duryea, Luzerne; John T. Kinnan, Green Township, and Joseph G. Sechler, Cherry Tree, Indiana; George W. Holland, St. Clairsville, Bedford; Leslie G. Peck, Wesleyville, Erie; L. A. Skinner, Pine Township, Armstrong; Ulysses S. Bird, Canton, Bradford.

Asks Board To Fix Gas Limit.

The question of how much a company can require in a guarantee before furnishing electricity or gas service has been raised before the Public Service Commission by J. O. Ulrich, of Tamaqua. He contends that the Eastern Pennsylvania Light, Heat & Power Company wants a guarantee of certain sums for ten years before extending mains.

Governor Renames Elliott and Niver.

Governor Brumbaugh reappointed S. B. Elliott, of Reynoldsville, a member of the State Forestry Commission, with which he has been connected since July 2, 1904. He also reappointed Mrs. E. C. Niver, of Charleroi, a member of the Board of Censors for Moving Pictures.

Patterson Named For Black's Place.

George M. Patterson, of Williamsburg, Blair County, was appointed a member of the State Agricultural Commission to fill the vacancy caused by the appointment of Frank B. Black as State Highway Commissioner. Patterson was four times a member of the Legislature from Blair County.

200 Workers Killed In July.

A summary of accident reports for July issued by the Bureau of Statistics of the Labor and Industry Department, says that during the month 200 persons were killed in Pennsylvania industrial plants, while 19,028 were injured. During the first seven months of this year 1,336 persons were killed and 142,267 injured.

Orders Bristol To Begin Clean-up.

State Commissioner of Health Dixon sent directions to the Borough of Bristol to immediately inaugurate a clean-up of all highways and premises in the town which are not in sanitary condition. This action was taken because of reports of inspections made in the borough.

7 Counties Increase Potato Crop.

The reports to the Department of Agriculture show seven counties in which an increased acreage has been given to potatoes, in some instances as high as thirty per cent.

Plenty Of Quail Reported.

Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, secretary of the State Game Commission, in a statement declared that there are more quail and grouse in the woods than known for a long time.

R. M. Williamson Withdraws.

R. M. Williamson, of Huntingdon, has withdrawn as a candidate for Congress, in the Seventeenth District, on the Washington party ticket.

Soft Drink Dealers Prosecuted.

Reports of prosecutions on soft drinks show over 150 arrests lately and that some glaring adulterations by use of chemicals were attempted.

Pennsylvania Charters.

The following charters were approved by Governor Brumbaugh:

Corporation Building and Loan Association, Philadelphia, capital $5,000,000; treasurer, Bloomfield Launt.

Rex Building and Loan Association, Philadelphia, capital $1,000,000; treasurer, John Stewart.

Keystone Bank, Harrisburg, capital $50,000; treasurer, Aug. Lutz.

Sizerville Magnetic Mineral Spring Water Company, Emporium, capital $30,000; treasurer, H. O. Haupt.

W. J. W. Mfg. Company, clothing, Philadelphia, capital $5,000; treasurer, William P. Jones.

West Philadelphia Garage, Philadelphia, capital $5,000; treasurer, C. E. Wiley.

Downs Manufacturing Company, carpets, etc., Philadelphia, capital $25,000; treasurer, G. T. Downs.

Epstein Brothers Company, clothing, Philadelphia, capital $50,000; treasurer, Louis Fleisher.

Philadelphia Cloak and Suit Company, Philadelphia, capital $5,000; treasurer, Bernard R. Cohn.

Charters were also issued to the Cleveland Township, Franklin Township and Mayberry Township electric companies to operate in Columbia County, and the Rush Township Electric Company, to operate in Rush Township, Northumberland County, capital of each $10,000, officers in Philadelphia, E. E. Baker, Germantown; treasurer, R. H. Wilbur and S. D. Warriner, Philadelphia, are also interested.

Coroner G. H. Moore, of Schuylkill County, reported to the County Commissioners that there were twenty-six tragic deaths during the past four weeks. Three different drownings occurred at bathing places which were the result, the Coroner declares, of "carelessness."

The Turmoil

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

The Story of a Big Man in a Big Town

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

SYNOPSIS.

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. At the Sheridan housewarming banquet Sheridan spreads himself. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Mary shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone.

For all his resistless energy and confidence, Sheridan is about to receive a great blow. Bibbs shows to better advantage in the crisis than you'd believe he could. It is a question, now, whether the old man will recognize his "weak" son's power and give him something better to do than working in the factory.

He expanded this theme once more; and thus he continued to entertain the stranger throughout the long drive. Darkness had fallen before they reached the city on their return, and it was after five when Sheridan allowed Herr Favre to descend at the door of his hotel, where boys were shrieking extra editions of the evening paper.

"Now, good night, Mr. Farver," said Sheridan, leaning from the car to shake hands with his guest. "Don't forget I'm goin' to come around and take you up to— Go on away, boy!"

A newsboy had thrust himself almost between them, yelling, "Extry! Secon' Extry. Extry, all about the horrable accident. Extry!"

"Get out!" laughed Sheridan. "Who wants to read about accidents? Get out!"

The boy moved away philosophically. "Extry! Extry!" he shrilled. "Three men killed! Extry! Millionaire killed! Two other men killed! Extry! Extry!"

"Don't forget, Mr. Farver." Sheridan completed his interrupted farewells. "I'll come by to take you up to our house for dinner. I'll be here for you about half-past five tomorrow afternoon. Hope you 'njoyed the drive as much as I have. Good night—good night!" He leaned back, speaking to the chauffeur. "Now you can take me around to the Central City barber shop, boy. I want to get a shave 'fore I go up home."

"Extry! Extry!" screamed the newsboys, zigzagging among the crowds like bats in the dusk. "Extry! All about the horrable accident! Extry!" It struck Sheridan that the papers sent out too many "extras;" they printed "extras" for all sorts of petty crimes and casualties. It was a mistake, he decided, critically. Crying "Wolf!" too often wouldn't sell the goods; it was bad business. The papers would "make more in the long run," he was sure, if they published an "extra" only when something of real importance happened.

"Now Good Night, Mr. Farver."

"Extry! All about the hor'ble ax'nt! Extry!" a boy squawked under his nose, as he descended from the car.

"Go on away!" said Sheridan gruffly, though he smiled. He liked to see the youngsters working so noisily to get on in the world.

But as he crossed the pavement to the brilliant glass doors of the barber shop, a second newsboy grasped the arm of the one who had thus cried his wares.

"Say, Yallern," said this second, hoarse with awe, "'n't chew know who that is?"

"Who?"

"It's Sheridan!"

"Jeest!" cried the first, staring insanely.

At about the same hour, four times a week—Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday—Sheridan stopped at this shop to be shaved by the head barber. The barbers were negroes, he was their great man, and it was their habit to give him a "reception," his entrance being always the signal for a flurry of jocular hospitality, followed by general excesses of briskness and gayety. But it was not so this evening.

The shop was crowded. Copies of the "extra" were being read by men waiting and by men in the latter stages of treatment. "Extras" lay upon vacant seats and showed from the pockets of hanging coats.

There was a loud chatter between the practitioners and their recumbent patients, a vocal charivari which stopped abruptly as Sheridan opened the door. His name seemed to fizz in the air like the last sputtering of a firework; the barbers stopped shaving and clipping; lathered men turned their prostrate heads to stare, and there was a moment of amazing silence in the shop.

The head barber, nearest the door, stood like a barber in a tableau. His left hand held stretched between thumb and forefinger an elastic section of his helpless customer's cheek, while his right hand hung poised above it, the razor motionless. And then, roused from trance by the door's closing, he accepted the fact of Sheridan's presence. The barber remembered that there are no circumstances in life—or just after it—under which a man does not need to be shaved.

He stepped forward, profoundly grave. "I be through with this man in the chair one minute, Mist' Sheridan," he said, in a hushed voice. "Yessuh." And of a solemn negro youth who stood by, gazing stupidly, "You goin' resign?" he demanded in a fierce undertone. "You goin' take Mist' Sheridan's coat?" He sent an angry look round the shop, and the barbers, taking his meaning, averted their eyes and fell to work, the murmur of subdued conversation buzzing from chair to chair.

"You sit down one minute, Mist' Sheridan," said the head barber gently. "I fix nice chair fo' you to wait in."

"Never mind," said Sheridan. "Go on get through with your man."

"Yessuh." And he went quickly back to his chair on tiptoe, followed by Sheridan's puzzled gaze.

Something had gone wrong in the shop, evidently. Sheridan did not know what to make of it. Ordinarily he would have shouted a hilarious demand for the meaning of the mystery, but an inexplicable silence had been imposed upon him by the hush that fell upon his entrance and by the odd look every man in the shop had bent upon him.

Vaguely disquieted, he walked to one of the seats in the rear of the shop and looked down the two lines of barbers, catching quickly shifted, furtive glances here and there. He made this brief survey after wondering if one of the barbers had died suddenly, that day, or the night before; but there was no vacancy in either line.

The seat next to his was unoccupied, but someone had left a copy of the "extra" there, and, frowning, he picked it up and glanced at it. The first of the swollen display lines had little meaning to him:

Fatally faulty. New process roof collapses hurling capitalist to death with inventor. Seven escape when crash comes. Death claims—

Thus far had he read when a thin hand fell upon the paper, covering the print from his eyes, and, looking up, he saw Bibbs standing before him, pale and gentle, immeasurably compassionate.

"I've come for you, father," said Bibbs. "Here's the boy with your coat and hat. Put them on and come home."

And even then Sheridan did not understand. So secure was he in the strength and bigness of everything that was his, he did not know what calamity had befallen him. But he was frightened.

Without a word, he followed Bibbs heavily out through the still shop, but as they reached the pavement he stopped short and, grasping his son's sleeve with shaking fingers, swung him round so that they stood face to face.

"What—what—" His mouth could not do him the service he asked of it, he was so frightened.

"Extry!" screamed a newsboy straight in his face. "Young North side millionaire insuntly killed! Extry!"

"Not—Jim!" said Sheridan.

"And you come to tell me that?"

Sheridan did not know what he said. But in those first words and in the first anguish of the big, stricken face Bibbs understood the unuttered cry of accusation:

"Why wasn't it you?"

CHAPTER XI.

Standing in the black group under gaunt trees at the cemetery, three days later, Bibbs unwillingly let an old, old thought become definite in his mind: the sickly brother had buried the strong brother, and Bibbs wondered how many million times that had happened since men first made a word to name the sons of one mother. Almost literally he had buried his strong brother, for Sheridan had gone to pieces when he saw his dead son. He had nothing to help him meet the shock, neither definite religion nor "philosophy" definite or indefinite. He could only beat his forehead and beg, over and over, to be killed with an ax, while his wife was helpless except to entreat him not to "take on," herself adding a continuous lamentation.

Edith, weeping, made truce with

"Not Jim!" Said Sheridan.

Sibyl and saw to it that the mourning garments were beyond criticism. Roscoe was dazed, and he shirked, justifying himself curiously by saying he "never had any experience in such matters." So it was Bibbs, the shy outsider, who became, during that dreadful little time, the master of the house; for as strange a thing as that, sometimes, may be the result of a death.

"Dust to dust," said the minister, under the gaunt trees; and at that Sheridan shook convulsively from head to foot. All of the black group shivered except Bibbs. He had been close upon dust himself for a long, long time, and the machine shop, if he had to go back to it, would probably bring him closer still. To Bibbs' knowledge, no one and nothing had ever prevented his father from carrying through his plans. He had the gift of terrible persistence, and with unflecked confidence that his way was the only way, he would hold to that way of "making a man" of Bibbs, who understood very well, in his passive and impersonal fashion, that it was a way which might make, not a man, but dust of him. But he had no shudder for the thought.

The truth about Bibbs was in the poem which Edith had adopted. But he had not hidden his feelings about his father where they could not be found. He was strange to his father, but his father was not strange to him. He knew that Sheridan's plans were conceived in the stubborn belief that they would bring about a good thing for Bibbs himself; and whatever the result was to be, the son had no bitterness. Far otherwise, for as he looked at the big, woeful figure, shaking and tortured, an almost unbearable pity laid hands upon Bibbs' throat. Roscoe stood blinking, his lip quivering; Edith wept audibly; Mrs. Sheridan leaned in half collapse against her husband; but Bibbs knew that his father was the one who cared.

It was over. Men in overalls stepped forward with their shovels, and Bibbs nodded quickly to Roscoe, making a slight gesture toward the line of waiting carriages. Bibbs gazed steadfastly at the workmen; he knew that his father kept looking back as he went toward the carriage, and that was a thing he did not want to see. After a little while, "It's too bad!" he half whispered, his lips forming the words—and his meaning was that it was too bad that the strong brother had been the one to go. For this was his last thought before he walked to the coupe and saw Mary Vertrees standing all alone on the other side of the drive.

She had just emerged from a grove of leafless trees that grew on a slope where the tombs were many. Against such a background Bibbs was not incongruous, with his figure, in black, so long and slender, and his face so long and thin and white; nor was the undertaker's coupe out of keeping, with the shabby driver dozing on the box and the shaggy horses standing patiently in attitudes without hope and without regret. But for Mary Vertrees, here was a grotesque setting—she was a vivid, living creature of a beautiful world. And a graveyard is not the place for people to look charming.

She also looked startled and confused, but not more startled and confused than Bibbs. All his life Bibbs had kept himself to himself—he was but a shy onlooker in the world. Nevertheless, the startled gaze he bent upon the unexpected lady before him had causes other than his shyness and her unexpectedness. For Mary Vertrees had been a shining figure in the little world of late given to the view of this humble and elusive outsider, and spectators sometimes find their hearts beating faster than those of the actors in the spectacle. Thus with Bibbs now. He started and stared; he lifted his hat with incredible awkwardness, his fingers fumbling at his forehead before they found the brim.

"Mr. Sheridan," said Mary, "I'm afraid you'll have to take me home with you. I—" She stopped, not lacking a momentary awkwardness of her own.

"Why — why — yes," Bibbs stammered. "I'll—I'll be de— Won't you get in?"

In that manner and in that place they exchanged their first words. Then

He Started and Stared.

Mary, without more ado, got into the coupe, and Bibbs followed, closing the door.

"You're very kind," she said, somewhat breathlessly. "I should have had to walk, and it's beginning to get dark. It's three miles, I think."

"Yes," said Bibbs. "It—it is beginning to get dark. I—I noticed that."

"I ought to tell you—I—" Mary began, confusedly. She bit her lip, sat silent a moment, then spoke with composure. "It must seem odd, my—"

"No, no!" Bibbs protested, earnestly. "Not in the—in the least."

"It does, though," said Mary. "I had not intended to come to the cemetery, Mr. Sheridan, but one of the men in charge at the house came and whispered to me that 'the family wished me to'—I think your sister sent him. So I came. But when we reached here I—oh, I felt that perhaps I—"

Bibbs nodded gravely. "Yes, yes," he murmured.

"I got out on the opposite side of the carriage," she continued. "I mean opposite from—from where all of you were. And I wandered off over in the other direction; and I didn't realize how little time—it takes. From where I was I couldn't see the carriages leaving—at least I didn't notice them. So when I got back, just now, you were the only one here. I didn't know the other people in the carriage I came in, and of course they didn't think to wait for me. That's why—"

"Yes," said Bibbs, "I—" And that seemed all he had to say just then.

Mary looked out through the dusty window. "I think we'd better be going home, if you please," she said.

She gave him a quick little glance. "I think you must be very tired, Mr. Sheridan; and I know you have reason to be," she said gently. "If you'll let me, I'll—" And without explaining her purpose she opened the door on the side of the coupe and leaned out.

Bibbs stared in blank perplexity, not knowing what she meant to do.

"Driver!" she called, in her clear voice, loudly. "Driver! We'd like to start, please. Driver! Stop at the house just north of Mr. Sheridan's, please." The wheels began to move, and she leaned back beside Bibbs once more. "I noticed that he was asleep when we got in," she said. "I suppose they have a great deal of night work."

Bibbs drew a long breath and waited till he could command his voice. "I've never been able to apologize quickly," he said, with his accustomed slowness, "because if I try to I stammer. My brother Roscoe whipped me once, when we were boys, for stepping on his slate pencil. It took me so long to tell him it was an accident, he finished before I did."

Mary Vertrees had never heard anything quite like the drawling, gentle voice or the odd implication that his not noticing the motionless state of their vehicle was an "accident." At once she discovered that he was unlike any of her cursory and vague imaginings of him. And suddenly she had a glimpse of Bibbs' life and into his life. She had a queer feeling, new to her experience, of knowing him instantly. It startled her a little; she did not realize, however, that she had made no response to his apology, and they passed out of the cemetery gates, neither having spoken again.

Bibbs was so content with the silence he did not know that it was silence. The dusk, gathering in their small inclosure, was filled with a rich presence for him; and presently it was so dark that neither of the two could see the other, nor did even their garments touch. But neither had any sense of being alone. The wheels creaked steadily, rumbling presently on paved streets; there were the sounds, as from a distance, of the plod-plod of the horses. Oblongs of light came lancing into the coupe, and passed, leaving greater darkness. And yet neither of these two last attendants at Jim Sheridan's funeral broke the silence.

It was Mary who perceived the strangeness of it—too late. Abruptly she realized that for an indefinite interval she had been thinking of her companion and not talking to him. "Mr. Sheridan," she began, not knowing what she was going to say, but impelled to say anything, as she realized the queerness of this drive—"Mr. Sheridan, I—"

The coupe stopped. "You, Joe!" said the driver, reproachfully, and climbed down and opened the door.

"What's the trouble?" Bibbs inquired.

"Lady said stop at first house north of Mr. Sheridan's, sir."

Mary was incredulous; she felt that it couldn't be true and that it mustn't be true that they had driven all the way without speaking.

Bibbs descended to the curb. "Why, yes," he said. "You seem to be right." And while he stood staring at the dimly illuminated front windows of Mr. Vertrees' house Mary got out, unassisted.

"Let me help you," said Bibbs, stepping toward her mechanically; and she was several feet from the coupe when he spoke.

"Oh, no," she murmured. "I think I can—" She meant that she could get out of the coupe without help, but, perceiving that she had already accomplished this feat, she decided not to complete the sentence.

"You, Joe!" cried the driver, angrily, climbing to his box. And he rumbled away at his team's best pace—a snail's.

"Thank you for bringing me home, Mr. Sheridan," said Mary, stiffly. She did not offer her hand. "Good night."

"Good night," Bibbs said in response, and, turning with her, walked beside her to the door. Mary made that a short walk; she almost ran. Realization of the queerness of their drive was growing upon her, beginning to shock her; she stepped aside from the light that fell through the glass panels of the door and withheld her hand as it touched the old-fashioned bell handle.

"I'm quite safe, thank you," she said, with a little emphasis. "Good night."

"Good night," said Bibbs, and went obediently. When he reached the street he looked back, but she had vanished within the house.

Moving slowly away, he caromed against two people who were turning out from the pavement to cross the street. They were Roscoe and his wife.

"Where are your eyes, Bibbs?" demanded Roscoe. "Sleep-walking, as usual?"

But Sibyl took the wanderer by the arm. "Come over to our house for a little while, Bibbs," she urged. "I want to—"

"No, I'd better—"

"Yes. I want you to. Your father's gone to bed, and they're all quiet over there—all worn out. Just come for a minute."

He yielded, and when they were in the house she repeated herself with real feeling: "'All worn out!' Well, if anybody is, you are, Bibbs! And I don't wonder; you've done every bit of the work of it. You mustn't get down sick again. I'm going to make you take a little brandy."

He let her have her own way, following her into the dining room, and was grateful when she brought him a tiny glass filled from one of the decanters on the sideboard. Roscoe gloomily poured for himself a much heavier libation in a larger glass; and the two men sat, while Sibyl leaned against the sideboard, reviewing the episodes of the day and recalling the names of the donors of flowers and wreaths. She pressed Bibbs to remain longer when he rose to go, and then, as he persisted, she went with him to the front door. He opened it, and she said:

"Bibbs, you were coming out of the Vertrees' house when we met you. How did you happen to be there?"

"I had only been to the door," he said. "Good night, Sibyl."

"Wait," she insisted. "We saw you coming out."

"I wasn't," he explained. "I'd just brought Miss Vertrees home."

"What?" she cried.

"Yes," he said, and stepped out upon the porch, "that was it. Good night, Sibyl."

"Wait!" she said, following him across the threshold. "How did that happen? I thought you were going to wait while those men filled the—the—" She paused, but moved nearer him insistently.

"My God!" He Cried, "What's That?"

"I did wait. Miss Vertrees was there," he said, reluctantly. "She had walked away for a while and didn't notice that the carriages were leaving. When she came back the coupe waiting for me was the only one left."

Sibyl regarded him with dilating eyes. She spoke with a slow breathlessness. "And she drove home from Jim's funeral—with you!"

Without warning she burst into laughter, clapped her hand ineffectually over her mouth, and ran back uproariously into the house, hurling the door shut behind her.

CHAPTER XII.

Bibbs went home pondering. He did not understand why Sibyl had laughed. At home, uncles, aunts and cousins from out of town were wandering about the house, several mournfully admiring the "Bay of Naples," and others occupied with the Moor and the plumbing, while they waited for trains. Edith and her mother had retired to some upper fastness, but Bibbs interviewed Jackson and had the various groups of relatives summoned to the dining room for food. One great-uncle, old Gideon Sheridan from Boonville, could not be found, and Bibbs went in search of him. He ransacked the house, discovering the missing antique at last by accident. Passing his father's closed door on tiptoe, Bibbs heard a murmurous sound, and paused to listen. The sound proved to be a quavering and rickety voice, monotonously bleating:

"The Lo-ord givuth and the Lo-ord takuth away! We got to remember that; we got to remember that! I'm a-gittin' along, James; I'm a-gittin' along, and I've seen a-many of 'em go—two daughters and a son the Lord gave me, and he has taken all away. For the Lo-ord givuth and the Lo-ord takuth away! Remember the words of Bildad the Shuhite, James. Bildad the Shuhite says, 'He shall have neither son nor nephew among his people, nor any remaining in his dwellings.' Bildad the Shuhite—"

Bibbs opened the door softly. His father was lying upon the bed, in his underclothes, face downward, and Uncle Gideon sat near by, swinging backward and forward in a rocking chair, stroking his long, white beard and gazing at the ceiling as he talked. Bibbs beckoned him urgently, but Uncle Gideon paid no attention.

"Bildad the Shuhite spake and he says, 'If thy children have sinned against him and he have cast them away—"

There was a muffled explosion beneath the floor, and the windows rattled. The figure lying face downward on the bed did not move, but Uncle Gideon leaped from his chair. "My God!" he cried. "What's that?"

Did Mary Vertrees wait at the cemetery until Bibbs was ready to go just because she wanted to make his acquaintance? Jim is dead, you know, and the aristocrats must have money.

Linden Hall Wins From Pleasant Gap.

In a game replete with heavy hitting and ending with a great climax, the Linden Hall baseball team defeated Pleasant Gap on the former's grounds Saturday afternoon. With a score of 9 to 2 against them Linden Hall fell on Deitrich who relieved Lose, the "Gap's" mainstay in the box, and in the ninth inning brought the score to a tie, 12-12. The tenth inning proved fruitless for the visitors, but Linden Hall won the game by great hitting. Miller, for Pleasant Gap, essayed to stem defeat by taking the pitcher's burden, but failed. Nedson Keller caught a "groove" ball on the nose and sent it far out in the field. The hit netted a home run and the game.

Lime Briefs.

(Issued by The Pennsylvania State College, School of Agriculture.)

Several points should be kept in mind in applying lime to the land. Some of these points are outlined by an authority at The Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture and Experiment Station, as follows:

Lime should not be plowed down. It should be evenly distributed over the surface and then harrowed to insure thorough mixing with the soil.

Lime will correct soil acidity and make the soil favorable for the growth of bacteria thus stimulating especially leguminous crops. It may set free some potash but is not likely to prove profitable when used for this purpose alone.

Lime prices and freight rates vary with communities and it is therefore necessary to figure out for any community the most economical form of lime to use.

Equivalent amounts of the different forms of lime give practically the same results; provided, however, that when ground limestone is used it is fine enough to pass a 60-mesh sieve. If practically all will pass a 60-mesh sieve, there will be enough 100-mesh material present for the immediate needs of the soil.

Ground limestone at $2.50 per ton, hydrated lime at $3.37 a ton and burned lime at $4.46 a ton have an equal money value so far as lime content is concerned.

Knowing the prices of different forms of lime, the freight rate and hauling charges, one can readily calculate the cheapest form of lime to buy for his land.

Don't forget the big festival and ball game, Saturday, August 12th, for the benefit of the ball team. The boys have a fair start now, so everybody unite and help keep them going.

Some people at Pleasant Gap like to swim in the creek while others like to fall in. It's a poor cure for a bad temper.

The Pleasant Gap base ball nine defeated Linden Hall on the Linden Hall grounds on Saturday by a 12 to 11 score. Linden Hall tried to claim credit for the victory by not marking up runs for the home boys, but the latter were wise enough to bring home the score card, which shows a score of 12-11 in favor of Pleasant Gap. The next time the score keeper wishes to spring anything he does not want to forget to make the change on his card—or else keep his card. The umpiring was of the worst kind, the umpire asking the Linden Hall players if they thought they were out or not. Of course, since he was only a boy nothing more could be expected. The Pleasant Gap boys all say they would not play them again under the same circumstances. They have no doubt whatever that they can beat them at any time in a fair game. The Linden Hall manager showed his lack of baseball knowledge throughout the game. In case of further argument the score card, as kept by Linden Hall's own score keeper, can be found in the hands of the Pleasant Gap manager.

An effort is being made in Centre Hall and Millheim to break up the practice of speeding with automobiles. Spring Mills should follow suit. Several accidents have been narrowly avoided and people have been warned often enough. Severe action should be taken.

MILLHEIM

RITER BOY STILL UNCONSCIOUS.

Distracted Parents of George Riter Patiently Waiting for Turn Which They Trust Will Be for Better in Lad's Condition.

It was a most distressing bit of news which sent Edward Riter, accompanied by his father-in-law, George E. Gingerich, to Pottsville, Schuylkill county, last Thursday morning. The message received was that George Riter, eight years of age, and the older of the two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Riter, had been seriously injured in a fall. The gravity of the injury may be appreciated when it is said that the lad has been in an unconscious condition for an entire week.

The circumstances surrounding the mishap are these: Mrs. Riter and her two sons had a week previous gone to Pottsville to visit friends and early last week the mother left for Philadelto do some shopping. She returned to Pottsville Wednesdry afternoon and on her way from the station to her stopping place George ran to meet his mother and upon approaching a ditch along the road stumbled and fell into it. The fall resulted in a fracture of the skull and when the mother reached her boy she found him unconscious. A doctor's examination revealed that there was a concussion of the brain and that the lad had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

Anxious relatives and friends in Centre Hall have been hoping for some encouraging news but it has failed to arrive. Dr. H. H. Longwell, the local physician, has received information from the physician having the lad in charge at Potteville, regarding the progress the boy is making, and the latest news was received Tuesday afternoon, which contained Monday's report of the hapless boy's condition. George was "holding his own," were the physician's words, although still unconscious.

As the Reporter goes to press (Wednesday noon) no further word has been received, so it may be presumed that no change, for better or for worse, has taken place.

DEATHS.

Miss Elvina Smith died at her home east of Lamar, early Monday morning, after an illness covering a period of several weeks from a complication of diseases, one of which was uremic poisoning. Funeral services will be held early this morning at the home of the deceased, interment in the Heckman cemetery, east of Spring Mills.

The deceased was the only daughter of Dr. Charles and Rebecca (Trion) Smith, and for many years lived where she died, the place being known in the early history of Nittany Valley as the Custer hotel stand. Upon the death of her father, Miss Smith became the owner of the Custer farm, and her home continued the reputation for hospitality earned for it during the lifetime of her parents.

She is survived by two brothers—John Smith, Harrisburg; and Charles W. Smith, Howard. Her age was about seventy-six years.

Daniel Heckman died at his home in Bellefonte Wednesday morning, after having been bedfast for more than five years. He was a native of Penns Valley and was county commissioner for two terms, having been elected in 1896 and again in 1899. His wife and several children survive.

Novelist's Japanese Prints.

It is not often that the British museum is enriched by so valuable an addition as that of Arthur Morrison's collection of Japanese prints. It is one of the very finest collections of its kind extant.

Arthur Morrison, who is the writer of Tales of Mean Streets, and other remarkable works of fiction, is the greatest living English authority on Japanese art, on which he has written much. His interest in the subject is due to an accident. Some 20 years ago he las attracted by a print in a shop window and incontinently bought it. That was the beginning of his activities as a collector and connoisseur.

If every property owner kept the alley and street adjoining their belongings neat and clean, there would be considerable saving to the borough. Divided up among all property owners, one person would need to expend but little effort to accomplish what will occasion considerable expense to the boro. And then it is a question whether or not property owners could not be obliged to do this very work.

Mrs. John G. King returned to Centre Hall Monday, after spending the week-end in Bellefonte with her sister, Mrs. Morris W. Furey, says the Watchman. During her visit there Mrs. King was honor guest at a family party given at Maplehade in celebration of her birthday. ONLY MADE MATTERS WORSE.

Captain's Words of Intended Comfort Completed Panic of Terror-Stricken Passengers.

"To try to reassure people in time of an accident sometimes causes more trouble than the accident itself," said a man who once lived on Staten Island. "At any rate, that was my experience when one of the old Staten Island ferry boats nearly turned over one day in a fierce wind. It looked as if destruction were inevitable.

"The boat had dipped until it almost stood on edge; passengers stampeded, women and children shrieked and cried in terror. Badly scared as I was, I undertook to comfort a woman who had knelt and was praying loudly for deliverance.

"'Don't be alarmed, Madam,' I said. 'We are sure to be all right. The boat will straighten up in a few minutes. It has been running for fifty years, and it is not likely to go down now.'

"My comforting words had a most unexpected effect.

"'Oh,' wailed the woman, 'if the boat has been running for fifty years it must be so old and rotten that it can't possibly stand this strain. We're done for.'

"And with that she jumped overboard.

"Fortunately, she was fished out by the crew, but she sustained a severe shock. The boat, of course, weathered the storm, and that woman was the only person on board who was injured."

THINNING IN MEDICAL RANKS

Fewer College Men Take Up the Study of Medicine, According to the Statistics.

An official in one of Philadelphia's big medical colleges said to me, writes a Philadelphia Public Ledger reporter: "The number of physicians grows less each year. There is already a noticeable lack of them in some rural districts.

"It is true also that the number of medical students in our Philadelphia colleges, as well as in the medical colleges in other parts of the United States, is smaller now than it was formerly. In 1904 there were 29,000 medical students in the country, but now there are only 18,000."

"What is the reason for this decline?" I asked the college professor. "Stiffer courses of study," he replied. He seemed to think that the country could well afford to get on with fewer doctors, provided it had better ones. Each year sees a larger number of doctors attached permanently to hospitals. I asked this authority what he thought the average income is of Pennsylvania doctors, and he guessed $1,500.

I learn from an authoritative source that the average salary of all Methodist ministers in the Philadedphia district, which includes towns adjacent, is $1,172 a year.

Pampered Lapdogs.

The New York papers report that a wealthy woman well known in society circles went to one of the finest hotels in New York and engaged a suite of four rooms and three baths for three months at $50 a day. There was a living room, a bedroom, and a bath for herself, a room and a bath for the maids, and a bedroom and bath for her "babies," as she called her three dogs, two Japanese and one a Pekingese spaniel.

Rising from their satin-lined baskets in the morning, the dogs are bathed with scented water in the big white tub. After that comes breakfast with milk and toast. At luncheon the "babies" are served with lamb chops and creamed potatoes. Dinner consists of a bit of chicken, mashed potatoes, and a dessert of ice-cream or some creamy confection.

The fare of the dogs is fifty shillings a day, or more than $45,000 a year.—London Tit-Bits.

Minister's Patience Gone.

Have you seen anything of that motor church they are sending around the country, Babbles?" asked Winkles.

"Yes," said Babbles. "Saw it this morning stuck in a ditch down by the golf links. When it left the minister was sitting on a fence rail watching a lot of unregenerate sinners trying to pull it out, and nodding his approval of the language they used in doing it, too."—Harper's Weekly.

SEEMINGLY KNEW ITS VALUE

Moose Refused to Come Within Range of Hunter's Rifle Until the "Auto" Had Been Raised.

A parsimonious sportsman, shooting over some wild lands in Nova Scotia, being desirous to bring down a moose, started out to engage a guide and moose caller. The usual pay of a Nova Scotia guide is two dollars a day; but the sportsman in question was too mean to pay the regular rates, and finding a skillful guide, one Louis the Indian, temporarily out of a job, after much wrangling managed to jam him down to one dollar a day, and the two started out into the woods. All the conditions were favorable to finding a moose, but, although each day before sunrise Louis the Indian took his birchbark cone, and, placing it to his lips, whinned and grunted in imitation of a moose, there was no answering call, no antlered giant of the forest stalked into view. After twenty-odd days of this sort of effort without a result, the sportsman grew both impatient and suspicious, and, calling the guide to his tent, he began to upbraid him.

"Louis," he said, "I don't understand this kind of business. Here we are in the best moose country in Nova Scotia. You are considered one of the best callers in the province. Every day you go out and call and call, yet no moose comes. What does it mean?"

The wily Indian took his pipe out of his mouth for a moment and smiled a smile of infinite cunning. "Me don't know what matter," he said. "Maybe moose no like dollar call."

The very next day, our sportsman having raised the ante to two dollars, a moose "came to the call"—the right call this time. Louis was a sly Indian.—Judge.

NOW HAS PETRIFIED APPLE.

Colorado Man Threw Fruit Into Furnace and the Heat Had Peculiar Effect.

By some process that no one he has consulted has been able to explain, an apple has undergone petrification in the furnace at the home of C. Schrades of Denver, Colo., who has offered the curiosity to the state museum.

The apple, a russet, weighed about five ounces three weeks ago. It was thrown into the Schrades furnace, and now weighs fourteen ounces. Its color and shape were not affected by the heat, and it appears at a glance to be a perfect apple, except that there is a hole where the stem was; but it is so hard that the point of a knife blade cannot be driven into it.

Tactful Dancer.

Mme. Pavlowa had to pass through something of an ordeal during her recent visit to Russia. After a performance at St. Petersburg she was called to the imperial box and the czar asked her why she had ceased to live in Russia. But the dancer was equal to the occasion. She entered into an animated description of the beauties of her new London home, and especially of her pet swans, pigeons, and parrots, who could hardly be expected to enjoy the delights of travel and who even at that moment were pining for the return of their mistress. The czar listened with amusement and made a virtue of necessity when he gave his permission to the great dancer to live where and how she pleased so long as she remembered that her own people were second to none in appreciation of her art.

New Use for Ozone.

Ozone generators have been found to be of great value in refrigerating plants, and several of the large establishments of Europe have been thus equipped. In the cold-storage rooms attached to slaughter houses the temperature of the air is liable to be raised to a serious extent when the doors are left open for any reason; for instance, when meat is being put in or taken out. The micro-organisms of putrefaction immediately become active under such circumstances, and the keeping quality of the meat is diminished. Now it is well known that ozone is a powerful germicide, if the air of the cold-storage room is ozonized, its temperature may be raised without injury to the contents.

"Magnet Bill."

He doesn't look like a very important part of a big automobile organization, this stooped, grizzled man, but the president of a great motor car company says that "Magnet Bill" saves his salary a dozen times over every day he works. Rain or shine, summer or winter, "Magnet Bill" may be seen walking slowly about the automobile plant, his eyes on the ground. "Magnet Bill" gets his nickname from the fact that his tools consist solely of one tin bucket and a big steel magnet, strapped to the end of a shovel handle. It is his duty to save automobile tires by removing from the roadway every nail and bit of metal that might cause a puncture. Thousands of cars are run over the roadway to the testing place and it is figured that without the precaution taken by "Magnet Bill" the cost for cut and punctured tires would be $20,000 every year.—Popular Science Monthly and World's Advance.

Russia's Natural Roads.

Russia is almost a roadless land. It is inconceivable to the foreign visitor who has never left the beaten track of the railways in Russia how a great empire can have subsisted so long and so successfully without even a pretense at roads. The secret lies in the fact that for five or six months in the year nature herself provides roads over the greater part of Russia—admirable, smooth, glassy roadways over hard-worn snow.

The traffic is further cheapened over these roads by the substitution of a sledge-runner for the wheel and axle. This brings the cost of land carriage as near the cheapness of water-borne freight as possible and it is the principal reason why Russia in the twentieth century is still a roadless land.

A Ton-Weight Turtle.

That turtle "weighing nearly a ton" (fisherman's weight?) lately landed at Penzance cannot be either the green turtle, associated with civic feasts, or the hawk's bill, from which we get tortoise shell. These two belong to tropical seas, and are of smaller dimensions. The ponderous "hinseck" caught off Scilly must be a "loggerhead" turtle, which occurs in the Mediterranean, and sometimes visits our southern coasts. The "loggerhead" is the only carnivorous turtle, and distinguished from the green variety by size, shape of head, and number of plates on the armor. But he is occasionally cooked in mistake for his edible cousin, with disastrous results to the diners.—London Chronicle.

Laps.

His prowess as a walker was the subject of Jenkins' boasting one day.

"One holiday," he said, loudly, "I selected a course measuring four miles over the country, and timed myself. The result was that in one hour I covered 12 miles in three laps."

He waited for the exclamations of amazement, which did not come. Instead, one of his listeners remarked in a bored voice:

"That's nothing special. I know a young lady who once did 60 miles all in one lap, and she would have returned in the same lap, only I got a cramp so badly in the legs!"

CARRANZA REPLY TO U. S. NOTE

First Chief Insists Withdrawal is First Importance.

BROAD PARLEY TO WAIT

Names Commission To Settle Issues—Conferees Expected To Be Willing To Consider Other Questions.

Washington.—General Carranza still insists that the first thing to be decided by the United States and Mexico is the withdrawal of the American troops.

Mexican Ambassador Arredondo delivered to Acting Secretary of State Polk a note which, while naming a commission and tacitly accepting the last American proposal for a joint commission to investigate Mexican-American relations, laid stress on the fact that the Mexican commisioners are "to devote their attenion preferably to the resolution of the points mentioned in the previous note of this department." The points referred to are the questions of withdrawal of American troops from Mexican soil, border patrol and fixing of responsibility for border raids.

Washington officials agree that Carranza in this manner is indicating his intention to urge these questions ahead of all others.

No doubt has yet been expressed, however, by the State Department officials that the Mexican conferees will show a willingness to take up questions of Mexican finances and industrial development. On the other hand, the note implies that the commissioners will follow whatever lead is made by the American members, as they have been instructed to devote their attention "preferably" to the military problem.

The Note In Full.

The note follows:

"Mr. Secretary—I have the honor to transmit to your Excellency the following note which I have just received from my Government:

"Mr. Secretary—In due reply to the courteous note of the Department of State, dated July 28, 1916, I have the honor to say to your Excellency that the First Chief of the Constitutionalist Army, in charge of the executive power of the Mexican republic, congratulates himself upon his laudable efforts of the American Government to arrive at a solution of existing difficulties between the two countries, and, to that effect, considering it of the greatest importance that prompt decision be reached of the points which have caused the existing differences between the United States and Mexico, referred to in the note of the Mexican Government, dated July 4 last, has seen fit to appoint at once a commission of three persons, constituted by Luis Licenciate Cabrera, Engineer Ignacio Bonillas and Engineer Alberto J. Pani, to whom instructions have been given to devote their attention preferably to the resolution of the points mentioned in the previous note of this department.

"'Licenciate Eliseo Arredondo has been authorized to treat with the Department of State the matter of details relating to the place and date in which the commissioners of the Mexican Government should meet the commissioners of the United States in order to commence their labors. I reiterate to your Excellency the assurance of my highest consideration.

"'C. AGUILAR,

"'Secretary of Foreign Affairs.'

"I avail myself of this new occasion to renew to your Excellency the assurances of my highest consideration.

"E. ARREDONDO."

"BANDITS" WERE ONLY 4 SCOUTS.

Men Sighted By Patrol Were Of United States Army.

San Antonio, Texas.—Four scouts of the United States Army and a drove of loose horses constituted the band of Mexican bandits sighted by a Massachusetts infantry scouting patrol. This occurred south of Fort Hancock, Texas, according to a report to General Funston by General Bell at El Paso.

The four scouts were from the Big Bend district and happened to be near the wandering horses at the time they were sighted by the National Guardsmen.

General Bell informed General Funston that hereafter he would use regular army men instead of guardsmen for scouting.

CASEMENT'S BODY HELD.

British Authorities Refuse To Turn It Over To Relatives.

London.—British vengeance pursued Roger Casement, former British knight and consul, who was hanged in Pentonville Jail for high treason, even after death, for when Gavin Duffy, his solicitor during the trial, made a plea that the body be turned over to relatives, it was refused. According to the custom in the case of prisoners hanged for crimes similar to that of Casement, the body is buried in quicklime in the prison yard, but no decision as to this was expected till after the inquest.

PREMIER ASQUITH GIVES PEACE TERMS

Says Belgium and Serbia Must Be Restored.

GERMANY IS ORGANIZING

Wants Other Soil Occupied Given Up—Blacklist To Stay And Economic War To Be Waged.

London.—Greatly modified terms of peace were suggested by Premier Asquith in an address before the House of Commons.

The Premier explained resolutions adopted at the recent Allied economic conference in Paris to combat German commercial and financial penetration after the war.

One of the most striking features of the Premier's address was his omission of all mention of the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine as a contingent of peace.

Four Peace Terms Stated.

Briefly, the terms set forth by Mr. Asquith are:

1. Belgium must be restored and indemnified.

2. Serbia must be restored to nationhood, the Central Empires to pay for the damage done.

3. The occupied sections of France must be returned. Germany must pay the costs of restoring the devastated territory.

4. Occupied Russian soil must be evacuated and indemnity paid.

In his mention of Russia, the Premier did not refer to Poland.

Blacklist Till End Of War.

Premier Asquith declared that the trade blacklist against which the United States has protested must remain in force until the end of war. This, he declared, is the decision of the Paris economic conference. The resolutions adopted by the conference, he said, were not intended to harm neutrals.

"We are aware of some uneasiness in America," said the Premier, "but this is not justified. The Allies took these measures solely for self-defense against economic aggression. Every effort will be made to see that neutrals do not suffer."

The arms with which the Entente will fight its trade war against Germany after the ending of armed hostilities were set forth at some length by the Premier, who declared them necessary for the continued economic life of the European nations.

Says Germany Is Organizing.

"Germany is already organizing her industries to attack the allied markets and possibly go into victorious competition through neutrals," he said. "It is necessary to prepare to combat this. The Paris economic conference was held to convince the enemy that the Allies are resolved to wage the war with complete unity and determination in the economic as well as the military sphere.

"The war has opened Great Britain's eyes to the full meaning of the German system of economic commercial and financial penetration and the use to which advantage would be put in war. It is the duty of the Allies to take every step to secure for their own use the supplies of their own countries and to prevent German control. An economic system must be adopted and sufficient time be given to enable arrangements to be concluded before peace to prevent the danger of a renewal of the German penetration."

PASSES BILLION MARK.

Appropriations of Present Congress Set a New Record.

Washington.—Appropriations of the present Congress passed the $1,500,000,000 mark and set a new record. The bill for support of the District of Columbia carried the appropriations over the previous mark. Several other bills still remain, and leaders expect appropriations of another hundred millions before adjournment.

AUSTRIANS CUT FROM ALLIES

Russians in a Spectacular Performance.

TEUTONS ON THE DEFENSIVE

Teutons Reported Evacuating Kovel—No Important Change In Situation On Western Front.

London.—The second anniversary of Germany's declaration of war on Russia finds the relative positions of the belligerents very different from those of the first anniversary. The Entente Allies now are pursuing a successful offensive on all fronts and the Central Powers are virtualy everywhere on the defensive.

The operations on the eastern front continue to surpass those in the west in dramatic interest. The military critics express great admiration for the Russian tactics, one of the important objects of which, in their opinion, has been to isolate the Austrians from the German armies on the Russian front. This, it now is claimed, has been virtually accomplished by the Russians driving a wedge into the Austro-German positions along the front of Kovel-Vlandimir Volynski.

Austrian Collapse Expected.

The view here is that if the Germans have thus accepted severence from the Austrians, the most decisive result of the whole of the Russian General Brusiloff's strategy will have been obtained, it being argued by the military observers that without German support the Austrian armies will become demoralized and collapse.

The critics say that the Austrian forces between the Lipa and Dniester rivers are doomed.

There has been no confirmation of the report received in Rome that Kovel and Vladimir-Volynski have been evacuated, but Rome is usually well informed on Russian news.

Falling Back On Kovel.

A correspondent with the Russian forces has reported that the roads toward Kovel "are black with the retreating enemy." Exactly where General Brusiloff's next blow will fall is not known. The Russians are virtually within the same distance of both Kovel and Vladimir-Volynski, and also are pressing closer toward Lemberg.

Since Sunday's combined advance on the Somme line by the British and French, the situation there has been comparatively quiet. The French have sustained the brunt of the German counter-attacks launched against positions captured in this region. The Germans claim to have driven back the British, who had penetrated on a narrow front territory west of the Foureaux wood, and to have repulsed successfully an eight-fold French attack in the neighborhood of Maurepas. There has, however, been no important change in the line since the Anglo-French advance last Sunday.

JUSTICE CLARK TAKES OATH.

Sworn In As Member Of Supreme Court—Crowds Absent.

Washington.—John H. Clarke was sworn in as a Justice of the Supreme Court. Only Chief Justice White and the clerk and marshal of the court were present. Neither friends or the usual curious crowd saw Clarke take the oaths. Justice White came from his Lake Placid (N. Y.) summer home for the ceremony.

DOUBTS NORTH POLE DISCOVERY.

Not Substantiated, Says Resolution In House.

Washington.—Representativve Helgesen, of North Dakota, introduced a resolution declaring that Rear-Admiral Peary's claim to discovery of the North Pole had not been substantiated, and proposing that Congress repeal its act of 1911 promoting the explorer and tendering him the thanks of Congress.

GERMANS LOSE BEFORE VERDUN

French Recapture Fleury and System of Trenches.

GAIN OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Success of the Terrific Drive Gives the French a Footway on Two of the Most Important Heights.

London.—The French counter-offensive northeast of Verdun reached its climax in a powerful blow which has resulted in the complete recapture of Fleury and the whole system of highly organized defenses from southeast of Thiaumont to the Froid Terre Ridge.

After a series of almost uninterrupted attacks on the four-mile front from the Meuse to the woods west of Damloup, the French concentrated all their power in a tremendous thrust on the one-mile Thiaumont-Fleury line. They smashed forward on this front for a distance of about a quarter of a mile through the most powerful field works on the western front. They took 650 prisoners.

The village of Fleury was attacked from two sides, the northwest and southeast. In previous attacks the French had advanced as far as the ruined railway station, against furious resistance. Then, after the big guns had been given time to clear a path, the infantry again swept forward, this time to complete victory.

All the gains made by the Germans in their recent attacks have been swept away. In an attack simultaneous with that on Fleury, the French, in the Chenois sector, drove the Teutons from the trenches they had seized in this wooded region, capturing more prisoners. Berlin previously had admitted the loss of ground recently taken in Laufee Forest.

In three days the French captured more than 1,750 unwounded prisoners. They have also taken a large quantity of military supplies. But from all indications they have done far more than that. With the descent of the lull on the Somme the Germans seriously resumed their operations against Verdun. They had large forces at their disposal and all of their powerful artillery. But before they could get well under way the French launched their counter-offensive. In other words, they "beat them to the punch."

The French have regained a footing on two of the most important heights which look down on Verdun—Pepper Hill and the Froid Terre. The crest of the former is a No Man's Land, being constantly swept by shell fire. But from the latter the Germans hold artillery control of the heart of Verdun. They made much of the capture of Froid Terre, declaring it the most important position on the northeastern front.

BOLT BURNS HIS BACK.

Hurls Man And Child, Leaves Imprint Of Tree Stump.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—In blood red there is burned in the back of Norman Michael the imprint of a tree stump and a hundred roots, and Michael is suffering from the burns inflicted by a stroke of lightning. He was seated on his porch when there was a blinding flash and his small son, who was on the father's lap, was hurled across the porch. Michael was rendered unconsious and fell to the floor. The boy jumped up screaming, "Somebody shot papa."

RATTLESNAKE KILLS FARMER.

Strikes Him Three Times In Hand—Dies On Way To House.

Danville, Va.—Dock Belcher, a farmer of Vashti and a Confederate veteran, was killed on Wednesday by a rattlesnake, according to reports received here. Belcher saw the snake in the grass and attacked it with a stick. The reptile was more active than the aged farmer and struck him three times on the hand.

The farmer killed the snake, however, and started to his house, but fell and was found unconscious by two women passing in the road.

WOULD COST $142,000.

Investigation of Beef-packing Business Will Come High.

Washington.—Such a far-reaching investigation of the beef-packing business as is proposed by pending resolutions in the House would cost $142,000, the Federal Trade Commisison informed Congress. A subcommittee will take this into consideration in making recommendations on whether the inquiry should be made.

CAPTURE MEXICAN BANDITS.

Belonged To Band Which Engaged An American Patrol.

El Paso, Tex.—Three Mexican bandits captured by de facto troops several days ago, near San Ignacio, Chihauhua, were sent from Juraez to Chihuahua City that General Jacinto Trevino may sentence them. The outlaws belonged to the band, which after their capture, engaged an American patrol near Fort Hancock, Tex.

WESTERN CANADA

Co-Operative Creameries Show Tremendous Increase in Butter Production.

The Dairy Commissioner, at first annual convention of Saskatchewan Dairymen's association, reviewed progress of 1915 which shows a great increase in the butter production of the co-operative creameries amounting to 1,500,000 lbs. He also said the improvement in quality is shown by the preference accorded Saskatchewan butter in outside markets. Shipments out of the province for the year totaled 52 carloads.

According to bulletin just issued by the Manitoba department of agriculture, the dairy industry had a very successful year in 1915. There was an increase of over 1,000,000 lbs. of creamery butter produced, as against the previous year, about 260,000 lbs. increase in dairy butter and over 25,000 lbs. increase in the cheese output. The increase of the total value of milk and milk products was over $427,000. The production of dairy butter for Manitoba during the year was 4,150,444 lbs. and it brought an average price of 23c per lb.; of creamery butter 5,839,667 lbs. were produced which commanded 29c per lb. on the average; cheese production was 726,725 lbs. which sold at an average price of 15c—the total value of these three products is given as $2,760,698, in addition to which the milk produced is valued at $925,959 and the cream at $158,827, the average price of the milk being reckoned at 2.1c per lb. and of sweet cream at 32c per lb. butter-fat. In connection with the dairy industry it is interesting to note that almost the most important fodder crop now is corn, of which the 1915 production amounted to 190,132 tons. The biggest cultivated fodder crop is timothy which for last season produced 193,357 tons and the next most popular crop was brome grass with 45,815 tons; of alfalfa and clover there were produced some 38,000 tons. The number of cattle in the province is given as 631,005, which is an increase of 130,000 over the previous year.

The fact that the Red Deer, Alberta, cheese factory is handling four times as much milk this season as last winter shows the growing improvement in the dairy industry. On Feb. 14, it was announced the factory had just shipped two tons of cheese for Calgary market.

Cardston, Alberta, creamery in 1915 paid its patrons a rate of 27½c per lb. for butter fat and had a profit remaining over all expenses of $5,584. The creamery during season distributed among farmers $61,117 and manufactured 256,000 lbs. butter and 13,000 lbs. cheese. Average price realized for butter was 28¼ cents.

The development of the dairy industry of Northern Alberta is well indicated by the growth of a prominent dairy business here, which in 1915 produced 2,525,000 lbs. butter, an increase of 400,000 lbs. over the previous year. This product has found a market in all parts of Canada and this year will enter the export trade. Advertisement.

Righteous Indignation.

He had been showing his rich old aunt from the country some of the sights, and this evening they were to witness a revue.

He was keen on making a good impression, as he had great expectations from the old lady. So he was quite taken back when, as soon as the curtain rose, the good dame grasped him by the arm and hurried him from the theater.

"Disgraceful! Such bad management!" she said, indignantly, when they had reached the lobby. "Just fancy allowing the curtain to go up before those poor girls were dressed!"

Frog Catchers Busy.

It seems that the home side of the frog-catching industry is looking up, because there are disadvantages to people hunting for frogs on parts of France that are battlefields. A handful of men, whose fathers were in the business before them, work frog catching in Epping forest with Seven Dials as base, and it is one of the most highly specialized industries in London. With frog catching snail catching is allied; the frogs go to some restaurants and to the anatomical laboratories of the hospitals, and the snails are chiefly bought as cleaners of suburban domestic aquariums. The snail that is eaten in Soho comes from the vineyards of France.—London Chronicle.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas. — "After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's stepsister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. Lowery, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

Imitation Pearls.

Clever imitation pearls have been made by filling thin glass bulbs with a solution of fish scale nacre. Another method is to coat the inside of the glass bulbs with a ten per cent gelatin solution which is allowed to become only partially dry before a small amount of sodium phosphate is added, then the drying process is continued slowly. The imitations look much like genuine pearls, but they can be detected by noting the place where the bulbs have been sealed.

HUGHES NOTIFIED OF HIS NOMINATION

By the Republican National Committee.

OUTLINES THE ISSUE

Committee of the Republican Convention Gives Him Formal Notification of His Selection as Standard-bearer.

New York.—Charles E. Hughes, who resigned as an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court to become the candidate of the Republican party for President, was formally notified of his nomination.

The speech of notification was delivered in Carnegie Hall by United States Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio.

In formally accepting the Republican nomination for the Presidency, Charles E. Hughes said, in part:

"Senator Harding, Members of the Notification Committee and Fellow Citizens:

"This occasion is more than a mere ceremony of notification. We are not here to indulge in formal expressions. We come to state in a plain and direct manner our faith, our purpose and our pledge. This representative gathering is a happy augury. It means the strength of reunion. It means that the party of Lincoln is restored, alert, effective. It means the unity of a common perception of paramount national needs. It means that we are neither deceived nor benumbed by abnormal conditions. We know that we are in a critical period. We need a dominant sense of national unity; the exercise of our best constructive power; the vigor and resourcefulness of a quickened America. We desire that the Republican party as a great liberal party shall be the agency of national achievement, the organ of the effective expression of dominant Americanism. What do I mean by that? I mean America conscious of power, awake to obligation, erect in self-respect, prepared for every emergency, devoted to the ideals of peace, instinct with the spirit of human brotherhood, safeguarding both individual opportunity and the public interest, maintaining a well-ordered constitutional system adapted to local self-government without the sacrifice of essential national authority, appreciating the necessity of stability, expert knowledge and thorough organization as the indispensable conditions of security and progress; a country loved by its citizens with a patriotic fervor permitting no division in their allegiance and no rivals in their affection—I mean America first and America efficient. It is in this spirit that I respond to your summons.

Foreign Relations.

"Our foreign relations have assumed grave importance in the last three years. The conduct of diplomatic intercourse is in the keeping of the Executive. It rests chiefly with him whether we shall show competence or incompetence; whether the national honor shall be maintained; whether our prestige and influence shall be lowered or advanced. What is the record of the Administration? The first duty of the Executive was to command the respect of the world by the personnel of our State Department and our representation abroad. No party exigency could excuse the nonperformance of this obvious obligation. Still, after making every allowance for certain commendable appointments, it is apparent that this obligation was not performed. At the very beginning of the present Administration, where in the direction of diplomatic intercourse there should have been conspicuous strength and expertness we had weakness and inexpertness. Instead of assuring respect, we invited distrust of our competence and speculation as to our capacity for firmness and decision, thus entailing many difficulties which otherwise easily could have been escaped. Then, in numerous instances, notably in Latin-America, where such a course was particularly reprehensible, and where we desire to encourage the most friendly relations, men of long diplomatic experience whose knowledge and training were of especial value to the country were retired from the service apparently for no other reason than to meet partisan demands in the appointment of inexperienced persons.

Denounces Plots.

"We denounce all plots and conspiracies in the interest of any foreign nation. Utterly intolerable is the use of our soil for alien intrigues. Every American must unreservedly condemn them and support every effort for their suppression. But here, also, prompt, vigorous and adequate measures on the part of the Administration were needed. There should have been no hesitation, no notion that it was wise and politic to delay. Such an abuse of our territory demanded immediate and thorough-going action. As soon as the Administration had notice of plots and conspiracies, it was its duty to stop them. It was not lacking in resources. Its responsibility for their continuance cannot be escaped by the condemnation of others.

"We are a peace-loving people, but we live in a world of arms. We have no thought of aggression, and we desire to pursue our democratic ideals without the wastes of strife. So devoted are we to these ideals, so intent upon our normal development, that I do not believe that there is the slightest danger of militarism in this country. Adequate preparedness is not militarism. It is the essential assurance of security; it is a necessary safeguard of peace.

"Shockingly Unprepared."

"It is apparent that we are shockingly unprepared. There is no room for controversy on this point since the object lesson on the Mexican border All our available regular troops (less, I believe, than 40,000) are there or in Mexico, and as these have been deemed insufficient the entire National Guard has been ordered out: that is, we are summoning practically all our movable military forces in order to prevent bandit incursions. In view of the warnings of the past three years, it is inexcusable that we should find ourselves in this plight. For our faithful guardsmen, who with a fine patriotism responded to this call and are bearing his burden, I have nothing but praise. But I think it little short of absurd that we should be compelled to call men from their shops, their factories, their offices and their professions for such a purpose.

BEE PARALYSIS EPIDEMIC.

Washington Sending Chief Government Expert To Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio.—An epidemic resembling paralysis has broken out among the Ohio bee colonies and threatens to reduce materially the State's output of honey, according to an announcement by N. E. Bees attacked by the disease quit work, go off to a corner of the hive and lie there until they die, says Mr. Shaw.

MAN GOT A BATH OF EGGS

Ten Crates of Hen Fruit Bury Philadelphian, When Car Hits Wagon.

Covered from head to foot with broken eggs, and in a dazed condition, Anthony Capolo, thirty-six years old of 904 Pearce street, was carried into the Methodist hospital last night. After the eggs had been scraped from his clothing and body it was discovered Capolo was suffering from lacerations and contusions of the body.

Capolo was riding in a wagon along Moyamensing avenue, and was buried beneath a wreck of ten crates of eggs when the vehicle was struck by a trolley car. John Downey, an egg and poultry dealer of Chester, driver of the wagon, failed to see the approach of the car and drove across the tracks directly in its path.—Philadelphia Record.

RELIABLE REMEDY RESTORES KIDNEYS

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is a physician's prescription.

Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. Dr. Kilmer used it for years in his private practice. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it will help you. No other remedy can successfully take its place.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

HEAD HUNTERS GETTING BUSY

Natives of Solomon Island Take Advantage of War to Gather Trophies.

At first sight there does not seem to be a very close connection between the war in Europe and head hunting in the Solomon islands. Nevertheless, the one arises from the other.

Previous to the outbreak of the war, according to a Vancouver World's Sydney (N. S. W.) correspondent, British, and occasionally German warships patrolled the islands and endeavored to keep down cannibalism among the natives, who are largely of Papuan or Malaysian stock. However, the requirements for the transport of troops led to the recall of the British warships—and the happy head hunter has been free to follow his own devious courses.

In one raid made by a mountain tribe upon a small village near the coast no less than 26 heads were secured. No punishment followed because the whites were unable to organize in time. As a consequence the raids are growing more dangerous, and although as yet, no Europeans have been attacked, planters have constantly to keep on their guard.

Why She Worried.

"Oh, my!" sighed the sad one.

"Now what's the matter?" said the other.

"This paper says the engineers assert that only enough coal to last the world 800 years is available in Newcastle."

"Well, why don't you go down to that fortune-telling woman and find out if you're going to live over 800 years?"

MAKE BIG GUNS ABSOLETE

Western Inventor Devises an Aerial Torpedo That Gives Promise of Effectiveness.

What may eventually prove to be a highly effective war implement, and, if so, possibly render present heavy artillery obsolete for long range operations, is a self-controlled aerial torpedo that has lately been developed in Colorado. It is described in the August number of Popular Mechanics Magazine. In a general way, the instrument attempts to accomplish over land what the United States navy's new wireless torpedo does at sea. Its principle and method of operation, of course, are entirely different. As is to be inferred, it consists of a small aircraft—much like an ordinary biplane—carrying a large, high-explosive torpedo which it is designed to drop at any predetermined spot within a certain radius. The projectile, which is about twelve feet in length, forms the body of the machine and is divided into two compartments. The propeller is mounted at the front end of it, while the shaft extends through the entire torpedo to the rear compartment where an 18-horsepower motor is housed. The speed and course of the machine are regulated by means of a gyroscopic mechanism, while a timing device of some sort releases the engine containing missile at the proper instant for it to strike its target.

"No," replied the munitions speculator. "Nothing doing with airships. I'm for submarines."

Three Words To Your Grocer—

"New Post Toasties"

will bring a package of breakfast flakes with a delicious new corn flavour—flakes that don't mush down when milk or cream is added, nor are they "chaffy" in the package like the ordinary kind.

These New Post Toasties are manufactured by a new process using quick, intense heat which raises tiny bubbles over each flake, the distinguishing characteristic. And the new process also brings out a new corn flavour, never tasted in corn flakes of the past.

Try a handful dry—they're good this way and the test will reveal their superior flavour. But they're usually served with milk or cream.

7 Counties Have Bigger Potato Acreage.

Seven counties in the state report an increase in the acreage in potatoes this season, according to statistics gathered by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Eleven other counties report the acreage up to the general average, but in the others there has been a decrease as low as thirty per cent in some instances. This has been brought about by the weather conditions during May and the early part of June.

The counties in which there has been an increase are Allegheny, Bedford, Carbor, Greene, Lancaster, Philadelphia and Schuykill, while the counties showing the average acreage are Berks, Elk, Fayette, Forest, Pike, Somerset, Franklin, Lebanon, Lehigh, Montour and York.

The recent warm and dry weather has been very beneficial to the growing potatoes but conditions were reported far below the average early in July in Clearfield, Lackawanna, Union, Wayne, Wyoming, Bradford and Tioga Counties.

THE MICROSCOPE.

Little Talks on Health & Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D., Commissioner of Health.

No single invention has made possible greater saving of human life than the microscope. Its origin dates back to antiquity. There is every reason to believe that the ancients had some knowledge of the use of the single lens. The compound microscope was probably invented shortly after the middle ages. The Italians and the Dutch both claim the discovery.

These ancient microscopes were very crude instruments compared with those of today. They were, however, sufficiently powerful to reveal myriads of living things in the clear atmosphere as well as in a clear tumbler of water, but they left us to imagine a great unseen living world beyond the power of the new instrument, and that is even so today with our most improved microscopes.

In the hands of scientists the microscope has revealed from time to time a teeming life of bacteria everywhere present. Some of these minute organisms are the friends and some the deadly foes of man. Vegetable, and indirectly animal life, depends upon their work.

Typhoid fever, tuberculosis, typhus fever, tetanus, and other diseases are the result of certain of these bacteria which can only be seen by the aid of the microscope. There is evidence, but as yet no positive proof, that they are responsible for many other diseases, the aetiology of which is yet unknown.

An army of scientific workers is today occupied in the study of bacteriology for the purpose of discovering the organisms that produce the different diseases, and then to push on with the idea of discovering that which would produce immunity or cure. This work is vital to the welfare of humanity, indeed it is that which forms the foundation of preparedness.

There is a constant warfare between these little single celled organisms and man. The bacteria have the advantage of reproducing themselves in untold numbers and of adapting themselves to different environments, and when the conditions surrounding them suit their existence they produce great epidemics of disease that man is unable to resist. The fight is an interesting one as man has already discovered how to combat successfully many diseases which for centuries baffled the skill of science.

Record Crops on College Farms.

Modern agricultural methods involving crop rotation and scientific fertilization have this season produced the heaviest crop ever grown on the farms of the Pennsylvania State College. Larger yields have been obtained from every crop with the exception of wheat, which will give the normal amount. C. L. Goodling, the college farm superintendent, attributes the unusual conditions to favorable growing weather, and to the application of results obtained from the experimental plots. These fertilizer plots are the oldest in the country, and the data collected during thirty-five years of experimentation has been used successfully by the college.

More than 600 tons of hay were cut from 275 acres, or an average of about three tons per acre. The oats crop will yield sixty-five to seventy bushels to the acre.
